

MISSION MOMENTS for kids

Dear Parents,

This week your children will be learning about local missions during their time with us. The curriculum is produced by Building Families for Children, an organization that has been committed to maintaining strong families and healthy communities since 1920.

These real-life stories are about people who came to Building Families to find help. They emphasize the value of loving God and loving each other. We will present the information in a child-friendly and positive way. There are five mission moments, one for each day, running about 10 minutes long.

Our hope is to raise awareness and prayer support for the work done in local communities. We want to be a blessing and allow this local ministry to thrive in their Kingdom work.

We ask that parents take time to ask their kids about what they have learned. Also, to spend time praying for the local ministry and the real-life situations they are learning about.

Your children will bring home activity sheets after each session. We also invite you to consider how your family can be involved in the work of Building Families for Children. Please visit their website to find out how at www.buildingfamiliesforchildren.org.

MISSION MOMENTS for kids

Dear Parents,

This week your children will be learning about local missions during their time with us. The curriculum is produced by Building Families for Children, an organization that has been committed to maintaining strong families and healthy communities since 1920.

These real-life stories are about people who came to Building Families to find help. They emphasize the value of loving God and loving each other. We will present the information in a child-friendly and positive way. There are five mission moments, one for each day, running about 10 minutes long.

Our hope is to raise awareness and prayer support for the work done in local communities. We want to be a blessing and allow this local ministry to thrive in their Kingdom work.

We ask that parents take time to ask their kids about what they have learned. Also, to spend time praying for the local ministry and the real-life situations they are learning about.

Your children will bring home activity sheets after each session. We also invite you to consider how your family can be involved in the work of Building Families for Children. Please visit their website to find out how at www.buildingfamiliesforchildren.org.

